

No: The book won't tell any more about the current situation than the former head of the "silent agency" is telling today. It will tell of the last days of the war, and his personal experiences. It will be a history.

With him in Phoenix is his wife, Clover, who spent her first day at the stock show.

He writes a second book, it will be about how

Communism works; how it gets its apparatus and claws into a country, and how difficult it is, once this happens, to get them out.
And what a problem this will be in Cuba, even though the Communists
there are given only arms and advisors, when a people hear only one song, when their leaders have fled the country or have been killed or jailed.

His vacations in the past have been working vacations as he has traveled all over the world consulting with his staff, learning all he can.

No: He has not been in Russia. Recently that is.
